During my consultancy, I had a very successful resolution to a complex and troubling dispute in a Major Construction Contract. Chris Horsfield offered me very clear and experienced advice throughout the process. He understood which battles to pick and gave honest assessments of areas that would be futile to pursue – this is very important in an effective pre-adjudication strategy. Chris was at hand whenever I needed to talk with him and offered attendance at pivotal meetings, which was invaluable to our case.

I had a lot of confidence that Chris would be able to negotiate with my best interests at heart and that he would not rest until we got through the most difficult of weeks with a positive outcome. I would not hesitate to recommend him to any other developers dealing with similar disputes, and will continue to get direction from him when entering into future Major Construction contracts for my Company.
